

CERTIFIED BACKFLOW TESTING COMPANY DIRECTORY

The Eagle River Water & Sanitation District's Backflow Prevention Program, in conjunction with State Drinking Water Regulations and the Colorado Department of Public Health & Environment (CDPHE) require that all technicians have one of the following certifications: American Society of Sanitary Engineering (ASSE) or American Backflow Prevention Association (ABPA).

Please be advised that there are different testing certifications for the type of system where a backflow is installed (Domestic, Irrigation, Fire Sprinkler). Please inquire with the company to verify they are certified to perform work on a specific type of backflow.

For specific District requirements, see Appendix G Cross Connection Control Program, of the District Rules and Regulations which may be found at www.erwsd.org/resources/rules-regulation.

The Certified Backflow Testing Company Directory below is provided as a resource to assist the District's water service customers in finding a contractor to complete testing and installations of backflow prevention assemblies as needed. The District makes no representation regarding the abilities, performance or quality of these resources, nor does the District assume or accept any responsibilities for the actions of any company/tester/installer named on the list. The District recommends that customers exercise judgement when contracting with any testers or installers and to call several companies for pricing and availability.
